LIZ TRAVELS,
in Hermanus, ZA

Guess where this is? South Africa! I went to the annual Hermanus Whale Festival, a three-day festival dedicated to a special type of whale: the southern right whale! How big or small are they? Well, this species is bigger than humpback whales and smaller than blue whales. You can go on a boat to get close to the whales. This is called whale watching. I learned so much about why we need to protect whales. Did you know that whales can live to be 100 years old?

LIZ TRAVELS,
in Bali, ID

I took this photo while I was in Bali, Indonesia, in total silence. People there celebrate the New Year for six days in March or April. New Year in Indonesia is later than New Year in the USA. Day three of the celebrations is called Nyepi (the Day of Silence) and there's no electricity, no traffic, no work, and no school for 24 hours. It's a day of purification. Being quiet isn't easy, but it's easier than you think! After several hours, I felt calmer than I was before. And I loved it!
